

25 Reasons to Write

- Write because there's a fire that burns in your soul.
- Write because the world needs your story.
- Write because you can't not write.
- Write because the words build up within you and need an escape.
- Write because you can use words to encourage and build up.
- Write because He who called you is faithful, and He will do it.
- Write because He who calls also equips.
- Write because it brings Him glory.
- Write because it's an act of obedience to your Maker.
- Write because you have a story to tell.
- Write because He tells us to make His name known among all nations and generations.
- Write because He who is in you is greater than he who is in the world.
- Write because someone out there might be changed by what you have to share.
- Write because your bones ache when your pen stays silent.
- Write because the act of creating reflects the image of God in you.
- Write because your words will live on long after you do.
- Write because future generations need to know.
- Write because you can't sleep until that sentence and is tucked away, safe and sound.
- Write because it's free therapy.
- Write because it's a release.
- Write because it's sanctifying.
- Write because it's cathartic.
- Write because it stretches and grows and shapes and refines you.
- Write because your voice matters.
- Write because you can.